One Source Networks Explores VoIP Advancements and Mobility in its VoIP for a Global, Mobile Workforce White Paper

SAN ANTONIO, TX. August 2, 2011-- One Source Networks \(OSN\), a facilities-based carrier agnostic communications solutions provider, announces the release of VoIP for a Global, Mobile Workforce, a white paper that explores the technology that empowers a mobile workforce, and addresses the misnomers often associated with the perception of enterprise-based VoIP solutions.

Advanced IP technologies are enabling enterprise businesses the opportunity to efficiently and cost-effectively deploy a mobile workforce. Today meaningful mobility solutions allow aspiring companies to look beyond their geographic boundaries, consider:

- 89 of the top 100 US companies offer telecommuting;
- 58 percent of companies consider themselves a virtual workplace; only nine percent of employees worked at headquarters; and
- 67 percent of all workers used mobile and wireless computing.

One Source Networks' paper, VoIP for a Global, Mobile Workforce, details this growing trend and provides key insights into the VoIP products and services that mobilize today's worker. With technological advancements and connectivity improvements, this white paper provides readers with compelling, enterprise-quality VoIP solutions to improve workforce productivity today and for years to come.
